In response to the COVID-19 outbreak the Florence County Health Department has put together a virtual career day. The virtual career day is designed to help underclassmen get some ideas on careers they'd be interested in pursuing after high school. Typically, the school would do career day and provide students with information about different careers throughout the school. But, unfortunately the COVID-19 Outbreak has changed the school's abilities to provide career information. Therefore, the health department is trying to help students as much as they can.

The interviews are approximately seven minutes long and ask 10 basic questions to give students a general idea of what the career is like and what education goes into it. The health department interviewed a variety of careers to interest all students and their different passions! The interviews vary from a career in police work to interior design, giving students many different job paths to look at. The health department would like to say thank you to all who participated including: Abbie Waliczek/nurse, Amber Kolberg/emergency preparedness coordinator and community health specialist, Amy Giesen/physical therapist aid, Ashley Reitter/ecology, Chris Selden/dentist, Dan Miller/Florence County Sheriff, Francie Rochon/owner of Francie's Interior Designs, Greg Seibold/lawyer, Mallori Kendall/social worker, Pam Smith/teacher, Pat Smith/forestry, Staff Sergeant Truttmann/Marine Corps, and Dr. Kim/veterinarian.
